4. The outstanding feature of the Government Scheme for Family Pension is that for a very low rate of subscription family provision is secured when there is actual need. The rate is not raised to secure the chances of a member getting a lumpsum when there is no need. The real object of a family pension has been kept in view and the rules framed accordingly.

5. It is hoped that the above explanation will make matters clear and that Government employees will now come forward in greater numbers to join the family pension scheme. In the case of officers of higher classes, e.g., Assistant Commissioners, who are likely sooner or later to attain a salary on the full amount of which they will not be able to insure in the ordinary branch owing to the Rs. 50 limit, such a step seems very desirable, in the interests of officers themselves.

6. Government officers intending to become subscribers to the Family Pension Branch from its start should apply without delay for the necessary forms to the undersigned.

J. S. CHAKRAVARTI,
Secretary, Insurance Committee.
